Tri Deltas Are Thrilled To Welcome 42 New Sisters

Alpha Beta is proud to announce its 2006 pledge class! No less than 42 wonderful ladies comprise our newest addition. The pledge period was jam-packed full of exciting activities, starting with a very successful progressive dinner on Bid Night.

Our newest recruits and our member sisters traveled to four different senior apartments around Collegetown where we all had pizza and cake, shared funny stories, and started to get to know one another. The next day, new members met the Tri Deltas in Trillium for lunch, sporting their new Bid Night t-shirts.

Weekly meetings took place every Sunday after chapter dinner. New members learned the history and rituals of Tri Delta, the advantages of collegiate and alumnae membership, as well as Tri Delta cheers and songs.

Older sisters have gotten to know the new members by acting as their Silver, Gold, and Blue sponsors while new members have gotten closer by acting as each others' "Trident Gum Buddies."

More recently, new members spent the night at the house learning their pledge dance, making t-shirts, and sister-sister bonding.

Delta Week approached quickly and was a time filled with ritual and reflection.

Initiations were held on March 9th and 10th. Alumnae are always welcome to attend these special occasions!

As the new member educator, I was a little sad to see the pledge period end, but I am very thrilled to be able to call these fine new members our sisters and Alpha Beta Tri Deltas.

Big Little Week Features Tropical Serenades, Chocolates, And Fun!

New members enjoyed a week full of gifts and surprises during Big Little Week, which was held February 13-18. Sophomores, in addition to some upperclassmen, were paired up with their little sisters based on personality and common interests. The Bigs excitedly shopped, decorated gifts, and planned nightly activities for their girls in preparation for a fabulous week. Monday started off with a bang with a tropical theme, in which many of the girls were serenaded by fraternity pledges wearing Hawaiian shirts and leis.

On Valentine's Day, the Littles received lots of love in the form of chocolates, sonnets, and flowers. The girls continued to get showered with gifts and Delta love throughout the week and were given clues each day as to the identity of their big sister. On Friday,

Delta Day, the majority of the new pledge class was invited to the house for a special performance by the Hangovers, a popular male a capella group on campus. By the giggles and smiles on the girl's faces, it was quite obvious that they enjoyed the show.

Revelation was held on Saturday afternoon and the Bigs arrived at the house early to set up for the moment they'd all been waiting for. Each sister was given a ball of yarn and strung it around the house for their little sister to follow. At the end of the string, the girls in each lineage were sitting in one of the bedrooms eagerly waiting for their Littles. After about an hour of trying to make it through the string maze, the new members found their Bigs. Excited cheers and laughter could be heard throughout the house as each girl was welcomed into her new lineage. Overall, every girl was thrilled with her matches, and the week was a great success!

Tri Delta Inaugurates An Intramural Sports Chair

Tri Delta has had a long history of participation in intramural sports; however, it was not until this year that Intramural Sports Chair was officially adopted as an officer position. In past years, girls could organize their own teams if they wanted to play, which was inefficient and reduced the number of sports and people that could become involved in.

As Intramural Sports Chair, I am very excited to be able to finally organize teams to make intramural participation an easy and fun way for girls in our house to bond and meet sorority members from other houses.

Participation levels will increase because information will be readily available and organizing teams, rides, times, etc., will be done by one person instead of many. Intramural sports are an excellent way for our new members to meet upperclassmen and to bond with each other while having fun and relieving the stress that Cornell brings on! Also, each sport is a small time commitment, which allows girls that are busy to be able to play.

Additionally, participating in a wide range of sports will help get our name out there as a strong chapter on campus. It gives students an opportunity to see that our chapter is involved on campus, and that we support each other. Through participation, cheering sections, and Tri Delta athletic gear, intramural sports are an excellent way to bolster a positive image of our house. Having team spirit and showing support for the girl's playing illustrates the bonds between sisters and how proud everyone is of our chapter. Also, playing against other sororities helps create strong ties with other houses, increasing the cohesiveness of the Greek community as a whole. Intramurals also gives a chance for other non-Greeks to see the Greek community in an optimistic light; showing that we are involved on campus and do not isolate ourselves within just our own house.

This semester, I am planning our participation in a wide variety of sports to suit the desires and strengths of everyone in the house. This month, we will be competing in inner-tube water polo for the first time. Also, this past weekend, our four-on-four flag football team won their two games and are advancing to the finals! Later in the semester, we will be having softball, volleyball, dodge ball, indoor soccer, and floor hockey teams. All of these sports allow many girls to play; thereby increasing the sister-sister bonding. New members will be able to talk and play with outgoing seniors, which will increase the strength and unity of our chapter.

One aspect of Tri Delta that sisters find so appealing is the diversity of our chapter, and intramurals is a good way to bring that diversity together. It is a unifying activity that does not rely on skill level, personalities, or interests, but rather focuses on team vigor. Intramural sports will bring our chapter together throughout the semester and provide sisters time to de-stress and become involved without a large commitment.

Alpha Beta Chapter Dominates At Leadership Conference

On Saturday, February 11, 2006, Cornell University Pan-Hellenic Board and IFC held the A.D. White Leadership Conference for all Greeks on campus. Our Alpha Beta Chapter entered in full force, with 12 officers in attendance. The event included three breakouts before all attendees met together for lunch and the keynote speaker.

Some of the Alpha breakouts included presidents' training, financial officer training, and crisis management. The Beta breakout focused on legal liabilities, the stakeholders of your chapter, and "Confronting the Idiot in your Chapter." Lastly, the Gamma breakout discussed building legacies, inspiration for Greek leaders, and showcasing our success.

These breakouts were not only informative, but also served as an incredible networking opportunity for members of the Greek community on campus.

Most notable from the conference was the keynote speaker, T.J. Sullivan, discussing "Greek Chapter Apathy is a Myth." In addition to his humor and the candidness in his words, Mr. Sullivan opened up the eyes of our officers to new and improved ways of running our Alpha Beta Chapter. All of the officers look forward to implementing their new knowledge over the next year.

Tri Delta Rush 2006 Was A Phenomenal Success

"Hi, my name is Meg! How are you enjoying recruitment? What is your major? Where are you from? What activities do you participate in on campus? Isn't it freezing outside?"

Luckily for Alpha Beta sisters and our newest members, the last question was (thankfully) not applicable—as we met all of the young women going through this year's formal recruitment process. Beginning on Friday, January 13, the members of Alpha Beta Chapter arrived back on campus for what turned into an incredibly exciting and successful rush week. With the highest number of registered potential new members in Cornell's history (600-plus!), our chapter entertained hundreds of girls with a new and improved house tour, a great slide show designed by seniors Cara Levin and Nikki Jaffe, a fantastic "Delta Air" skit from the sophomore pledge class, and adorable and memorable drinks and decorations care of our stellar senior party chairs.

Among the highlights of this year's recruitment week were: Noah, our house parents' (almost) two-year old son running through the kitchen unexpectedly, our pre-rush bonding dinner at The Pines Restaurant, countless readings (all with smiles and tears) of "Tri Delta Is..." and, as mentioned earlier, great weather!

The entire process was a great bonding experience for all sisters involved, and resulted in 42 amazing new members! The chapter has loved getting to know these young women over the past month, and is very excited about their involvement in the chapter over the next three years!

Great skiing conditions; and incredible grooming! In February, a lovely vacation in Georgia and Florida; a good time to get away from Shelter Island! In April, I finally made it to China with Doris Schultz. Fabulous, fast moving, and very enlightening. I would love to see more this beautiful country! In May, a nice trip to Harborcourt, New York, Yacht Club Station, and to Newport, Rhode Island with daughter, Toni, and husband, Larry Landry. June brought a heat wave to Shelter Island! Thank God for my new air conditioner! In July, I had my first bout with cancer: some melanoma on my cheek; but it was nicely removed. Stay out of the sun, everyone! In September, a wonderful trip to Rhode Island and Boston with Dick Legare. I visited my grandson, Will Brechter, a freshman at Tufts University. Terrific! In October, I attended a very beautiful wedding in New York City and enjoyed my first helicopter ride. Can't wait to do it again! In December, I stayed on Shelter Island for all the wonderful Christmas festivities here; Christmas Eve and Day with my children and grandchildren. Happy New Year to all!" Jean gets her mail at P.O. and is somehow managing to get decent grades while having lots of fun. He surprised a lot of us by making the dean's list and Academic-All-American his first semester. Bill is in his second stint with Cope-Linder Architects in Philadelphia. They begged him to return about 10 years ago after he had been away for about five years. He loves to play bridge and golf. He's very good at bridge, but fewer and fewer people play the game. His 90-year old partner retired from competitive bridge in 2003, which forced me to start competing. I'm not nearly as good as she was or as he is. He is addicted to golf and has good days out there and not-so-good days. I've been the Trust Accountant at American Friends Service Committee for almost 10 years, at which point I will get a six-week sabbatical that I hope to use wisely. It has been a great place to work during the stressful months of dealing with my mother's health and the teenage challenges. My golf has improved in recent years, but I'm becoming one of those little old ladies that hits a short ball and has a decent short game. I'm trying to improve my strength to get my distance back. My bridge is improving as well, but not as fast as Bill would like. The tough part of '05 was that Bill's mother died unexpectedly after heart surgery. She was caring for Bill's father who suffered from Parkinson's Disease. After she passed away, he declined quite dramatically. Bill's sister did most of the work involved with caregivers, selling and emptying the house. Bill's father eventually passed away Labor Day weekend. 2005 had its ups and downs. We had fun shooshing down the slopes of The Canyons together. I got to visit with her again in June, when I was in Boston for my niece's baptism. Late in the spring, when my then two-year-old daughter and I were in D.C. for a wedding, Jen Beer '90 and her husband, Paul, were kind enough to host us. They were expecting their first later in the year and might have wondered what they had signed up for when they saw my little spitfire have a tantrum over some Pepperidge Farm goldfish I wouldn't give her (it was six in the morning!). Regardless, this past October, they welcomed little Lydia Rose into the world. She looks like a cutie! Marcela Hahn '90 brought her son, Nate, out to San Francisco for Memorial Day weekend and we had a blast taking a ferry and hiking around Angel Island with Jeanine Potts '90, who also lives nearby. If anyone's coming into town, please be sure to e-mail me at emcpeake@comcast.net."

Laura (Hubbert) DiCarlo '91 still enjoys staying home with her three boys, John (8/3/98), Sam (6/4/00), and Will (1/17/03), who keep her very busy.
